

ABSTRACT

The present invention relates to a hydrogenation catalyst for petroleum resin containing a sulfur component which catalyst comprises palladium and platinum supported on carrier at a ratio by mass of palladium to platinum being in the range of 2.5 to 3.5, and is imparted with high hydrogenation reaction activity even in the presence of a sulfur component as well as a long service life.